

So, you want to annual plan?

Here are some considerations to keep in mind:

- Don't just look at the next twelve months and stop there. Strategy should include three or five year goals, or you might find yourself stuck in month 12.
- Think about how your planning cycle affects culture and morale. People need to know how they fit into the larger vision for the company, while also being empowered to problem solve throughout the year.